Again, thank you to all these reviewers who provide diligent and helpful comments to the authors. The reviewers are the backbone of this journal.

The new Editor is Jeffrey Morrell, who is an Emeritus Professor of Oregon State University and is serving as the Director of the National Centre for Timber Durability & Design Life at the University of the Sunshine Coast in Queensland, Australia. Jeff has many years publishing scientific articles and is well-known in the academic circle. He will do an outstanding job.

My parting comment is to encourage scientists to publish in Wood and Fiber Science. We have made strides ensuring this journal is a high quality scientific, professional journal for those of you in the wood science field.
